Leanne Burrow, a distance learning specialist with Purdue’s Agriculture Information Systems (AgIS) and a former Indiana State Fair 4-H poultry show assistant, scans an entry barcode with a handheld computer. She conducted a technology study at the State Fair that improved pen assignments during setup, cut entry errors and decreased results processing from three days to three hours. If the State Fair agrees, AgIS hopes to expand the system to other 4-H shows.
Playing by new rules